At the Chinese University of Hong Kong, exchange students have numerous opportunities to immerse themselves in greater China. Complemented with China-related extra-curricular activities, students can enroll in a wide range of courses offered by the Centre for China Studies focusing on contemporary China. These courses will give insights to China’s cultural past, modern history and contemporary society.

Students can also select courses across multi-disciplines in Humanities, Science and Social Sciences, and explore different aspects of China in arts, philosophy, government and economy. To fully appreciate China in all its dimensions, Chinese language courses at various levels are offered.

Contemporary China Studies courses*, 2013-14

For students with little or no background in China studies:

- China’s Cultural Past
  The course aims to engage with various dimensions of China’s cultural heritage.

- Modern China
  The course aims to study the history of China in the modern world, from the late Ming dynasty through the Maoist period to today.

- China on Screen
  The course aims to engage with Chinese film history and the idea of Chinese cinema as transnational, a triangular composite of mainland China, Taiwan, and Hong Kong, and influenced by its East Asian neighbors.

For students with some background in China studies:

- Global China
  The course examines the People’s Republic of China’s new position as a global economic, political, and cultural power.

- Politics in Contemporary China
  The course aims to engage with the key aspects of politics in the People’s Republic of China since its foundation in 1949.

- Media China
  The course examines the dynamic systems and cultures of media and communications in contemporary greater China, including mainland China, Taiwan, and Hong Kong.

Course offerings subject to change